

Show, don't tell

The list reissued after the catch-up on 18 August. Nine concepts are live. 007 Biddy's Cottage is retired. The changes agreed are folded in, and every one is logged at the back.

Reissued list, post catch-up

VERSION

Draft 4 · 18 August 2026

THE DIRECTION

Where these are heading.

Everything here moves away from friendly, safe and stock, towards three feelings. Each piece should land at least one of them. If a piece doesn't, it isn't for us.

Curiosity

A reason to stop scrolling. The small surprise, the thing people didn't know was here.

Charm

Real people, lovely to be around. Scripted enough to hold, loose enough for the unplanned moment.

Grandeur

The castle, the heritage, the scale. Shown, never announced. We earn the name.

HOW TO READ THIS

Nine live concepts, grouped by how much they need on the day, lightest first. Some are single pieces, some are series or banks that yield several. Green means ready to shoot. Amber means one thing is still open, usually a name, a date, or a stop. 007 was retired on 18 August. That number is not reused.

THE NUMBER

Counted conservatively, the nine live concepts yield around twenty-one finished pieces, comfortably past the floor of twelve, and more again once the longer pieces get clipped into shorts. Repeatable formats are doing that work, not volume for its own sake. If the 004 bubbles swap is confirmed, that bank yields one more.

THE LIST

Nine live, one retired.

Ordered by how much each one needs on the day. We build from the pieces that need nobody, up to the ones that need a named person in a set window.

#	CONCEPT	TYPE	NEEDS	PIECES	STATUS
TIER 1 · NEEDS NOBODY

CONSERVATIVE FLOOR

Around twenty-one finished pieces across the nine live concepts, before any longer piece is clipped into shorts. The drone bank, Grand Spaces and Anatomy Of each keep giving after the shoot, which is where the real upside sits.

THE WINDOW

When this all happens.

Mid-September is the shoot window. Alicia does not want to go later than that, for the weather. The dates below are what everything else hangs off.

WHEN	WHAT
Week of 24 August	Catch-up once Alicia is back from London. Mid-September date to lock then.
Now	Roof green-zone and red-zone map, Tommy via Christian. The drone brief hangs off this.
Now	Site: chairs arrived 14 August in pieces. Desks still outstanding. Reception unfinished. The breakfast room in 002 stays held.
Mid-September	The shoot, first clear day the site is camera-ready. No later than mid-September.
September	Mark is on paternity leave through August, so the Memorabilia Walk and Hidden Corners session runs as its own date once he's back.

FORMAT AND DELIVERY

Everything is shot in 4K and delivered in HD, 9:16 first, which is the priority format across Meta. Running paid? We supply the cut in whatever spec the placement needs. Horizontal cuts are possible from the masters if the website needs them. Stills are delivered portrait-first, framed with headroom for text-behind-subject graphics.

STAFF ON CAMERA

Anyone appearing is being asked to do something outside their job, so vouchers are on the table, as agreed. A small thank-you buys the second take, and the second take is usually the one we use.

001

PENDING REFRESH

ASSET BANK

The Castle From Above

Fresh aerial coverage of the approach, the grounds and the refreshed exterior, with Dublin Bay behind. The footage you have now predates the roof work, the terrace and the paddle court, and needed digital patching last time. This replaces it cleanly, shot on a clear day by a dedicated operator so nothing is compromised for the sake of the diary.

WHY IT WORKS

Grandeur is the pillar the channel under-serves, and height is how you show scale without a single word. It sits in the background of every other piece too, which makes it the footage the whole sprint leans on.

WHO	WHERE	WHEN
A solo drone operator. No hotel coordination on the day.	Approach through the bottom gate, terrace, paddle court, castle exterior.	A separate day, once the refresh is done and the weather holds.

STARTING POINTS, AHEAD OF YOUR LIST

- 01 Both approaches. Opening from the bottom gate opposite the hatch, matching the drive guests already know.
- 02 The terrace, both directions. Facing the castle and facing away. Missing entirely from the current footage.
- 03 The paddle court. A tight site, so we run test shots on the day and mind the privacy signage.
- 04 The exterior reveal. A slow pull off the castle with the bay behind.
- 05 The balconies. Establishing passes only, no close work with guests in frame.

OPEN

Roof coverage still waits on the green-zone and red-zone map, with Christian via Tommy. That is the brief the drone operator needs. The shots above are our starting points, and your list leads. Once both land we hand it to the operator and fly in the mid-September window, the first clear day the site is camera-ready.

002

READY

ASSET BANK

Grand Spaces

The interiors that carry the castle feeling on their own, captured as atmospheric footage. The Library Bar and the dungeon, the two rooms that transport you the moment you walk in. No people, no dialogue, just the room doing the work. One setup, several cuts.

WHY IT WORKS

Your own line on the call: show the grandeur, don't talk about it. These rooms are already renovated and shootable with nobody rostered, which makes this the lowest-friction way to build the grandeur pillar. It also gives every voiced piece its cutaway material.

WHO Nobody. Empty rooms, shot around the voiced pieces.	WHERE Library Bar and the dungeon, shot early while the rooms are quiet.	WHEN Any point on the shoot day, in the gaps.
---	--	---

SHOTS IN THE BANK

- 01 The Library Bar. The room in full, the piano, then slow detail on the bar itself.
- 02 The dungeon. The descent and the sense of being taken somewhere else.
- 03 The breakfast room, later. Still held. Chairs arrived 14 August in pieces; desks and reception unfinished. It joins the bank once the refresh is in.

FORMAT NOTE

Atmospheric B-roll, scored in the edit. The Library Bar appears here as a room and again in Anatomy Of as the setting for the cocktail, doing two jobs from one visit.

A format, not a one-off

003

READY

RECURRING FORMAT

Anatomy Of

One thing being made or served, captured close and in real time, narrated by whoever's doing it. No wide shots, no styling, no soft music. The detail is the point and the voice carries it. The format runs across as many subjects as the property offers. Three are ready to shoot now.

WHY IT WORKS

This is the strongest instinct in your own data. The pastry chef piece was one of only two things that actually performed. Real, close, unstyled and voiced beats every polished plate on the channel. Because it's a format, each new subject is another finished piece with no new thinking required.

003A

Afternoon Tea

One service assembled start to finish, through the eyes of whoever makes or serves it. The room and the fine detail carry grandeur, the narration carries charm.

Sue (lobby) or Allesia (pastry)

003B

The Pastry

The pastry chef's own craft, close on the hands. This is the one that already worked on your channel, so it anchors the format rather than testing it.

Allesia (pastry chef)

003C

The Cocktail

A cocktail built at the Library Bar, piano behind, hands and glass close. If the right person doesn't land, the fallback is a neat whiskey from the collection or a Wicklow Wolf brewed down the road.

Tommy has a candidate, to confirm

003D

The Pizza Oven

The oven, open and running on the terrace: dough to fire to table, narrated by whoever runs it. Summer on the terrace does the rest of the frame.

Whoever runs the oven, with Tommy

FORMAT NOTE

Handheld, close, real-time. Voice primary, kitchen and bar sounds kept in. Afternoon Tea can be clipped into shorter pieces once shot. One variant worth holding: a named chef with the recipe overlaid as text, one good line of personality carrying it. Same shoot material, different edit.

PROMPTS FOR THE NARRATED PIECES

- Talk me through it exactly as you do it, and stop me when a step matters more than it looks.
- How do you know when it's right? What are you looking for, listening for, smelling for?
- What's the step you'd never rush, and what goes wrong if you do?
- Who taught you this, and what did they insist on?
- What do guests always ask about this, and what still surprises them?

REFERENCES

 Ballynahinch Castle, slow-mo cocktail · the 003C fallback if the right talker doesn't land. No dialogue needed.

004

READY

ASSET BANK

The Coffee Hatch

Drive-thru coffee without leaving the car, which is a genuinely unusual detail for a hotel like this. Iced drinks, latte art, the specialty coffee feel, sitting next to paddle and the outdoors as part of the casual, active side of the place.

WHY IT WORKS

Curiosity does the work here. A castle hotel with a coffee hatch is a small surprise worth showing, and it reads younger than the rest of the channel. The still vignettes slow it down and give the charm somewhere to live, so the piece hits the feelings rather than just the offer.

WHO

One person on the hatch with a bit of pep, not a flat read.

WHERE

The hatch, then the quiet spots around it: the garden, the padel courts.

WHEN

Shoot day, minimal setup, worked in around the bigger pieces.

THE SHAPE OF IT

01 The hand-off. Cars pulling up, the latte art, the pass through the hatch. Quick and bright.

01b Same hatch, glass of bubbles. Same hands, same height. A pre-poured glass goes through the hatch the way the cup does. No pour, no garnish.

02 This. Static, slow zoom: the cup on a table, the garden behind it.

02b Then this. Same table, same zoom, glass on the cup's mark.

03 And this. Static, slow zoom: a padel rally mid-game, the sound of play kept in. One take. Do not double this as a drinks shot.

04 And this. One more still moment found on the day, the castle or the terrace behind.

FORMAT NOTE

Opens quick and candid at the hatch, then the pace drops into a run of static, slow-zoom vignettes, each introduced with two words of on-screen text: this, and this. The stillness is where the charm lands and the castle setting earns the curiosity. Scored, light on dialogue. Coffee and bubbles share the same marks, so one setup yields two cuts. Internal slates 004-coffee and 004-bubbles. This is not the Library Bar craft piece; that stays 003C.

REFERENCES

The Rabbit · the pace and tone, pointed at the hatch, the terrace and the paddle court rather than the wider brand.

OPEN

Bubbles on standby for the same This and This setups, Alicia to confirm. The glass stands in for the cup. The hatch and the setting stay the surprise.

TIER 3 Named subject

Customer-facing staff only

005

ROSTER PENDING

MINI-SERIES

A View From A Castle

Long-serving, customer-facing staff telling a real story. Two treatments: the signature pull-back, where the subject sits small and distant in frame and the shot slowly reveals them in the full context of the hotel, and a mic on the subject mid-service, camera static, the room's hustle carrying the frame. Each episode is a ninety-second vignette. Three or four in the series, and the lead cut goes to the longest-serving name in the building, a real number in the opening line.

WHY IT WORKS

People make the place, and your data proves it. The moments that landed were real people, not stock, and the post marking John Fitzgerald's retirement drew engagement the channel rarely sees. These are Dubliners who have been here decades and talk to guests every day. The charm you promise at the desk is the charm this captures on camera.

EPISODE 1

Sandra Jay

Senior executive manager, here forty-odd years. A natural anchor for the series.

EPISODE 2

Alan

The porter who runs the front and makes every arrival easy. Suits the mic'd service treatment, pottering the morning shift, or the pull-back to a full portrait of the hotel front.

EPISODE 3

James

On reception, and the example Alicia reaches for herself: he remembers a guest's name five minutes after check-in.

EPISODE 4 · WILDCARD

Tommy

The bookend. The newest person in the building against the forty-year servers: kitchen porter, then the bar, then a design degree, now the group's social.

PROMPTS

- Who's the guest you still remember, years later?
- What's changed here, and what's exactly the same?
- What would you tell someone about this place that they'd never guess?

REFERENCES

A View From A Bridge · the original inspiration for the pull-back treatment.

Skehans Free House, a regular · our own version of the format, proven.

Ashford Castle, 50 years of Paddy Costello · the tenure lead: a named person and a real number, the account's highest-engagement post.

Ballynahinch Castle, Pat at breakfast · the same device at smaller scale, still their top post.

OPEN

Customer-facing is the rule; anyone hesitant is cut. Cast four to land two. Tommy is putting the callout through HR and the staff forum with a voucher behind it, and the longest tenure in the building comes back with the names. Jennifer (gym, forty-odd years, if customer-facing) and John Fitzgerald, invited back as a guest, are the named backups.

006

BACK-POCKET

The Regulars

The guests who have been coming for years, captured lightly. This needs no formal interview. It can be as simple as Mark introducing a group who come for lunch every month, the tea in the cups, a familiar welcome. Observed, not staged.

WHY IT WORKS

It's the charm pillar at its most effortless, and it says something no brochure can: people choose to keep coming back. It also earns conversation through locality, which your data shows travels further than the property alone.

WHO

A regular guest or group, plus a light intro from Mark. No interview needed.

WHERE

Wherever they usually sit, doing what they usually do.

WHEN

Decided on the shoot day itself.

FORMAT NOTE

Candid and warm, minimal direction. A different register to the staff series, which is why it stands on its own rather than folding into it.

OPEN

Held in the back pocket and decided on the day. No named guest chased in advance, no prep carried. If a real regular is in the building during the shoot, we take it; if not, it drops without any cost to the rest. Alicia holds the names.

007

KILLED

NUMBER RETIRED

Biddy's Cottage

Retired after the 18 August catch-up, so the day stays tighter. Number 007 is not reused.

The history document Tommy sent that afternoon now feeds Hidden Corners (009). Mark, one stop at a time, architecture and the building. The outside-historian slot is gone. Locality as a standalone piece stays gone. 006 still holds light locality if a regular is in the building.

WHAT THIS WAS

Biddy McLaughlin, or a voice from the Killiney history group, telling the area's history from inside the rooms it happened around. Kept here so the number stays in the record. The treatment is not live.

008

CONFIRMED

SERIES

The Memorabilia Walk

Mark in the boardroom, walking through the family memorabilia: grandfather signing the cheque, the uniforms his mother sewed, decades of history in one room. One deep session, cut into two or three pieces.

WHY IT WORKS

Generational heritage, told first-hand, which is exactly the grandeur the channel needs to earn. There is said to be hours of material in that room alone. The precedent is strong: a reluctant publican in London talked for twenty-five minutes once he got going, and that became three deep cuts.

WHO	WHERE	WHEN
Mark. He's confirmed and happy to do whatever the business needs.	The boardroom, among the memorabilia.	One focused session, batched with Hidden Corners to protect his time.

PROMPTS

- Whose signature is that, and what were they signing?
- What's in here that you walk past every day without thinking about?
- Why is the restaurant called PJ's?

FORMAT NOTE

A deeper cut, two to two and a half minutes each. Allow the longer form here. Charm and grandeur, first-hand, in the family room. Paddy, Vico Road, the Gresham and PJ's stay with the objects. Default is this room. Off-site only if the shot list asks for it.

OPEN

Mark is on paternity leave for August, so this runs as its own date once he's back, still batched with Hidden Corners. The concept holds; only the date moves.

TIER 3 Named subject

Same session as the Memorabilia Walk

009

STOPS PENDING

SERIES

Hidden Corners

Mark surfacing the specific things a guest walks straight past: one object, one room, one detail at a time, with the story behind it. The focus is the architecture and the building's history, not family anecdote; the family material is parked for a possible Mark and Joe piece later. A handful of shorts, each its own piece. The dungeon is the first confirmed stop.

WHY IT WORKS

Curiosity and grandeur in the reveal. The man who built the house also put that stone on the hill, in a hard year. This ground was stone, then meadow, then a road around the hill, and the trees are still hers. When he was in, a flag went up so the hill would know the house was occupied. Mark points and remembers. We hold the dates.

WHO

Mark, same as the Memorabilia Walk.

WHERE

The dungeon, the maid's quarters corridor in the old wing, the Mapas room, plus stops Mark nominates.

WHEN

The same session, batched with 008.

PROMPTS

What Mark hears. Ask them standing next to the thing, then wait.

- What would a guest think this room is?
- What was this actually?
- What are they looking at that they never ask about?
- What was this ground before?
- Where did the flag fly from?
- Which of these trees were here before your family?

IN OUR POCKET

Mapas, 1741. The 1742 inscription and NISI DOMINUS FRUSTRA, if the hill is in frame. Loftus and the road. Warren and the flag. Mrs Chippendale Higgan and the trees. He does not recite these. We use them as OST or a read if he is looking at the thing. Default is the castle and the grounds. The hill, the church, Vico Road stay open until the shot list.

REFERENCES

Ashford Castle, The Guinness Legacy Experience · a historian walking hidden spaces: the architecture-and-history focus, working.

OPEN

Dungeon confirmed. Maid's corridor and Mapas room still candidates. Mark nominates the finals. Same date as 008: Mark is out for August.

010

IN-HOUSE SET

MINI-SERIES

Inside The Studio

The reformer studio as a separate, premium experience, captured through the instructor on camera. Myth-busting is the natural format: one misconception per short, positioned as part of a holistic, retreat-style stay rather than a gym add-on.

WHY IT WORKS

Pilates content travels well, and the studio's premium, separate positioning gives it a distinct audience. Framing it as an upsell within the stay, look what's here, matches how you want it to sit in the offering.

WHO	WHERE	WHEN
The in-house instructor. Of the three, she is the one on staff and already takes most of the classes.	The reformer studio, open from 20 July.	Shoot day, or its own window given the separate brand.

THE MYTHS, ONE PER SHORT

- "It's basically stretching." What's actually happening on the reformer, and what it asks of you.
- "You need to be flexible to start." Who actually walks in the door, and where they begin.
- "It isn't a real workout." What you feel the morning after a first session.
- "The machine looks complicated." The reformer, part by part, and what each piece does.
- "It's a gym add-on." Where a session sits in a night's stay, and what it changes about the stay.

FORMAT NOTE

Episodic, one myth per short; we shoot the strongest three or four from the list above. Cross-posts as a genuine collaboration between the studio's own Instagram and the hotel account, rather than an internal mention.

OPEN

Decided 18 August with Tommy: we go with the in-house instructor of the three. Name not being chased. Confirmed as a genuine collaboration with the studio's own account rather than an internal mention.

COPY BANK

On-screen text and post copy.

Post copy is pulled from real lines in the footage, not written to a formula. Where the line only comes from the shoot, it's marked as a placeholder. Captions run six words or fewer.

CONCEPT	ON-SCREEN	POST COPY
001 · Castle From Above	None. Scored, no text.	Placeholder. A short line on the view or the approach, set in the edit.
002 · Grand Spaces	None. Atmospheric, no text.	Placeholder. One line per room, drawn from the space itself.
003A · Afternoon Tea	Anatomy of an afternoon tea	Placeholder. Lifted from the narration on the day.
003B · The Pastry	Anatomy of a pastry	Placeholder. Lifted from the pastry chef's own words.
003C · The Cocktail	Anatomy of a cocktail	Placeholder. From whoever builds it, at the bar.
003D · The Pizza Oven	Anatomy of a pizza	Placeholder. From the oven, once it's lit.
004 · The Coffee Hatch	This. And this. Two words per vignette, nothing else. Coffee and bubbles share the same two words. The glass is the change.	Placeholder. Light and quick, set in the edit.
005 · A View From A Castle	Name and years, revealed on the pull-back.	Placeholder. The line that means something, cut from fifteen minutes rolled.

COPY BANK, CONTINUED

The Tier 3 pieces.

CONCEPT	ON-SCREEN	POST COPY
006 · The Regulars	None, or a light intro line from Mark.	Placeholder. Warm and short, from the moment itself.
007 · Biddy's Cottage	Killed 18 August. Number retired. None.	None.
008 · The Memorabilia Walk	A title per cut, taken from the object Mark's on.	Placeholder. First-hand, from the boardroom session.
009 · Hidden Corners	The name of the spot, revealed as Mark tells it. If the hill stop lands: NISI DOMINUS FRUSTRA or the 1742 inscription as a read, not a caption.	Placeholder. One line per stop, from Mark.
010 · Inside The Studio	The myth, stated plainly e.g. the misconception each short answers.	Placeholder. From the instructor, once talking points are set.

A NOTE ON THE CAPTION RULE

The best lines almost always come from the footage, not from a desk. That's why most of this bank is a placeholder at this stage. Once we shoot, the copy writes itself from what people actually say, and every gap here fills in from a real line.

ACTIONS

Still to close before the shoot.

Everything open, with an owner against it. Most of it lands once Alicia is back, week of 24 August.

ACTION	OWNER	BY
Roof zones for the drone, green and red. Google Map is enough.	Tommy, via Christian	Before the next call
Must-have drone shot list	Your team	Once the roof map lands
Bubbles on standby for the coffee hatch, same This and This setups	Alicia, via Tommy	Week of 24 August
Vignette roster via the HR callout, the longest tenure in the building, plus a check on Jennifer and a word with John Fitzgerald	Alicia, then Tommy	Week of 24 August
Vouchers for staff on camera	Alicia	Week of 24 August
Cocktail person for the Library Bar	The group	Week of 24 August
Regular guests happy to feature	Alicia	Held for the day
Two or three more Hidden Corners stops. History document is in.	Mark, via Alicia	Before his session
Mid-September date	Together	Week of 24 August
Drone day date	Together	Once the site is camera-ready
Shoot running order, once the date is set	Rua	Ahead of the shoot

CLOSED 18 AUGUST

Biddy sounded out: killed. Building history document: received. Pilates instructor: the in-house instructor of the three. Name not being chased.

Anything here that can't land before we lock the date, say so on the next call and we re-sequence around it rather than find out in September.

NEXT

Nine live. A date to lock.

007 is retired. The rest of the list still stands. What's left is the roof map, the bubbles yes or no, the roster, and a mid-September date once Alicia is back.

APPENDIX · CHANGE LOG

What's baked in, and why.

The decisions carried from the Week 0 call, so the reasoning travels with the document.

DATE	AFFECTS	CHANGE
1 Jul 2026	All	Concept list v1 built from the Week 0 call. Two themes confirmed: People & Place, and Process & Craft. Direction confirmed as curiosity, charm, grandeur.
1 Jul 2026	Scope	Club and gym excluded from the shoot. Low performance on channel and difficult logistics. Long-servers based in the gym can still feature if they're customer-facing.
1 Jul 2026	Scope	Styled food and conference or event content excluded. It underperforms and you can produce it in-house. The sprint prioritises what's harder to get without a planned shoot.
1 Jul 2026	002, 003C	Library Bar cocktail reframed. There's no mixologist role, so the drink becomes craft under Anatomy Of (003C) and the room becomes a grandeur bank (002).
1 Jul 2026	003	Anatomy Of set up as a recurring format rather than a single afternoon tea piece, so craft keeps yielding pieces across subjects.
1 Jul 2026	002	Grand Spaces added as a Tier 1 asset bank, to serve the grandeur direction with no coordination on the day.
1 Jul 2026	010	Pilates placed under People & Place as an instructor-led experience, not a craft process. Cross-posts from the studio's separate account.
1 Jul 2026	Process	No written pre-read before Call 2, by preference. Concepts are presented live and refined from your input afterwards.

Draft 2, what changed.

A second pass through both call transcripts, catching what the first draft missed.

DATE	AFFECTS	CHANGE
1 Jul 2026	005	Draft 2. Alan confirmed as the porter, one person rather than two episodes. James (reception) added, Tommy added as the wildcard bookend, Jennifer and John Fitzgerald named as backups. Second treatment added: mic on the subject mid-service, camera static.
1 Jul 2026	003C, 002	Reframed from the pour to the cocktail, per your steer on the call: it's the library cocktail bar, so the cocktail is the piece, with whiskey or Wicklow Wolf held as the fallback. Piano added to the Grand Spaces coverage.
1 Jul 2026	002, 003	Third grand room shortlisted from the calls: the new reception or Scotty's snooker room. Pizza oven added as 003D, the fourth Anatomy Of subject, once it reopens.
1 Jul 2026	Scope	Events exclusion softened: if a live event lands in the shoot window, flag it and we trade schedule for it. Empty function rooms stay out either way.
1 Jul 2026	005, 007	Renamed A View From A Castle. Biddy's session restaged: established at the cottage, then brought into the castle so the story lands inside the building. Her status set to confirm until she's asked.
1 Jul 2026	001, 004	Pool removed from the drone bank. Drone shots framed as starting points, with your must-have list leading. Coffee Hatch rebuilt around static slow-zoom vignettes and the this-and-this device, so the piece carries the feelings, not just the offer.
1 Jul 2026	003, 010	Prompt sets deepened for the narrated craft pieces. Pilates myth list drafted, closing the talking-points action.
1 Jul 2026	Process	Open items pulled out of the change log onto a standalone actions page, each with an owner and a date. Change log moved to an appendix at the back, so the document closes on the actions.
1 Jul 2026	Process	Working window page added: mid-August shoot, drone list by end of July, roster and sign-offs before the 21st. Delivery spec recorded: shot in 4K, delivered HD in 9:16 first, paid cuts supplied on request. Staff on camera incentivised with vouchers, as agreed.

Draft 3, after the run-through.

The decisions from the 16 July call, folded in. All ten concepts kept; nothing killed.

DATE	AFFECTS	CHANGE
16 Jul 2026	001	Drone bank agreed: both approaches, terrace in both directions, paddle court with test shots and privacy signage minded, exterior reveal, balconies without close work. Roof pending the green-zone and red-zone answer via Christian. Flying end of July or the first week of August.
16 Jul 2026	002	Third room cut. Library Bar and the dungeon only, shot early while quiet. Breakfast room held for the bank once the new drapes and chairs land.
16 Jul 2026	003	Cocktail candidate sits with Tommy. Pizza oven confirmed open, reopening caveat removed. Recipe-overlay variant added to the format note, from Ashford's named-chef pancake piece.
16 Jul 2026	005	Reframed around the tenure lead: the longest-serving name takes the first cut, a real number in the opening line. Backed by the top posts on both comparable accounts, Ashford's fifty years of Paddy Costello and Ballynahinch's Pat. Callout runs through HR and the staff forum with a voucher, Tommy driving.
16 Jul 2026	006	Moved to the back pocket: decided on the shoot day, no names chased in advance, no prep carried.
16 Jul 2026	007	Broadened to Biddy or the Killiney history group, whoever answers; Tommy ringing Biddy. Reframed as the authority piece on the area's history. Dungeon fireside set as the anchor image, cottage kept if feasible.
16 Jul 2026	008, 009	Mark on paternity leave for August; the batched session moves to its own date once he's back. Hidden Corners locked to architecture and building history, family material parked for a possible Mark and Joe piece. Maid's corridor and the Mapas room added as candidate stops; building history document with Tommy.
16 Jul 2026	010	Confirmed as a collaboration with the studio's own account. Studio opens the 20th; instructor named a week or two after.
16 Jul 2026	Refs	Ten visual references added across 003, 004, 005, 007 and 009: five supplied on the call, five surfaced from Ashford Castle and Ballynahinch Castle account research and verified against the source posts.
16 Jul 2026	Delivery	Stills spec added: portrait-first, framed with headroom for text-behind-subject graphics.

Draft 4, after the 18 August catch-up.

Tommy only; Alicia in London from 19 August. History document received the same afternoon.

DATE	AFFECTS	CHANGE
18 Aug 2026	007	Biddy's Cottage killed. Number 007 retired, not reused. No 011 opened. The outside-historian slot is gone.
18 Aug 2026	008, 009	History worked through against Curiosity, Charm, Grandeur. Mark's questions shortened to one breath. The cost-to-the-family question is out of 008. Dates, Latin and owner names stay in our pocket. Default is on the premises. Off-site stays open until the shot list.
18 Aug 2026	008	One prompt added from the 1970 beat: why is the restaurant called PJ's? Family stays in the boardroom.
18 Aug 2026	004	Recast from standalone to asset bank. Same This and This marks, coffee then a glass of bubbles, Alicia to confirm. Padel take is not doubled. Not the 003C Library Bar craft piece.
18 Aug 2026	010	In-house instructor of the three. Name not being chased. Status moves off instructor pending.
18 Aug 2026	002	Breakfast room still held. Chairs arrived 14 August in pieces; desks and reception unfinished.
18 Aug 2026	Window	Mid-September is the shoot window. Alicia does not want to go later, for the weather. Catch-up week of 24 August. Roof map still the drone brief.
18 Aug 2026	006	Regulars stay in the back pocket. Alicia holds the names.
